Accommodation

All our venues are in, or very close to the centre of the CBD. What's more, all have access to direct trains and buses. If you're planning to work at our venues, it is advised to live within 30min, so you don't spend all your time travelling to and from work.

Sydney has a good network of Trains, Buses, Ferries, and Light rail option for you to get around, so you'll have no trouble getting to work or exploring Sydney.

There are plenty of accommodation options in Sydney for when you arrive and renting a room, apartment, or house is easy, it just depends on what you can afford, and who you're with.

Single travellers

- Backpacker hostel - A good option is to rent a private room in a hostel when you arrive. They are cheaper than renting a room in shared accommodation and provide a good source of information and a place to meet people.
- Private room and Share accommodation - Flatmate.com and Flatmatefinder.com are websites where rooms are advertised for rent in Shared accommodation. This is a great place to go if you want a more privacy and cleanliness than a backpacker hotel would offer.
- Rental property and private accommodation - If you like your own space and want something private you can call your own, Domain.com and Realeaste.com provide rental properties. Be aware, that some real-estate agents are generally looking for a minimum 12-month lease and won't allow travellers to rent on short leases. Also, you will need to pay a bond or security deposit for any potential damage (general 4 weeks rent up front). This is paid back to you at the end of the lease but does make the initial cost of renting very high.
